Today the pilgrimage begins.... good-bye Oregon Coast.... Watch out New Harmony, we're on our way....
5 LNN members leave PDX tomorrow morning at 6:05 AM.

I just posted a new LNN Newsletter which has some items of interest that are too long for these e-mail announcements. http://www.labyrinthnetworknorthwest.org/newsletters/2010/LNN_Newsletter_November2010.pdf

Did you know that Jodi Lorimer's book promotion tour gave her the opportunity to do a presentation at Eve Hogan's place in Maui?
Have you seen Myra Smith's recycled Labyrinth art?
Did you ever wonder how Stephen Shibley mows labyrinths in a lawn? Well, here you have it... LNN Newsletter #9

Print it out.... Make a cup of tea ... Enjoy!

Please help me with the next newsletter!!!!

My work other work for LNN plus an occasional household chore keeps me overly busy. I really don't have time, energy, or talent to do newsletters. Some of these articles have been waiting 6 months! There is lots of news, but I need help with the editing and formatting.

Please help with ONE ISSUE. You don't need to take on a long term committment. Just try it once.

Do you have a desktop publishing program? Do you know how to use it?

I've been using Microsoft Word. That works too. Please help!

I have some more news articles which had to wait for the next newsletter. I know you'd be interested in some of the other news too if I had time to get it published.

Well, I'm going to put all that out of my head for now. Today I begin my pilgrimage to The Labyrinth Society's Annual Gathering. I plan learn a lot, do some networking, and have lots of fun. You won't be able to stop me from telling you about it.

Those of you who are staying at home can find lots of interesting labyrinth activities on the LNN Calendar. This weekend is the "Harvesting Gratitude" event at Marylhurst and a "Exploring Sacred Space Through Words" at the Shalom Center. <http://www.labyrinthnetworknorthwest.org/calendar.html>
